Over the past 9 years, Innovator Capital's CleanEquity® unit has reviewed over 5,000 companies in 11 sectors and over 70 sub-sectors. It will source 600 companies for the 2017 event, from which the top 30 will be selected to present at the conference. These companies must meet high standards of management ability & integrity, unique technological differentiation protected by intellectual property and high, global revenue potential.

The invitation only conference, provides an intimate and collegiate setting for inventors and entrepreneurs to share their stories with delegates - key decision makers looking to assist them with reaching their commercial and strategic goals. CleanEquity's one-to-one meeting team works tirelessly to facilitate introductions and meetings before, during and after the conference.

We are delighted to announce CleanEquity® Monaco's continuing relationship with the international law firm Covington & Burling LLP.

Andrew Jack, Partner and co-chair of Covington & Burling's Clean Energy and Climate industry group, commented:

"CleanEquity Monaco has an established reputation as one of the leading events on the global cleantech calendar, bringing together entrepreneurs, investors and industrialists passionate about deploying and commercializing cutting-edge technologies from across the globe.

"We would like to congratulate CleanEquity Monaco and its organizers on the event's 10th anniversary. We have been proud to support and assist CleanEquity and many of its impressive presenting companies over the last eight years through the year-round participation of a dedicated group of our senior technology, policy and transactional lawyers from our offices in Europe, Asia and the United States.

"In a world that is increasingly complex and highly regulated, Covington & Burling have built a powerful firm-wide capability to help our clients navigate the intersection of law and policy, a capability, which is aligned perfectly with the dynamic development of the global cleantech sector and the focus of events such as CleanEquity Monaco. The firm's transactional and technology expertise coupled with our ability to advise on the toughest legal, policy and commercial challenges produces consistent results for our clients' businesses."

CleanEquity® is delighted to announce also the continued support of its key media partner PR Newswire, the global media and communications expert, owned now by Chicago based Cision.

Andrew S. Meranus, Vice President, Business Development, PR Newswire/Cision commented:

"It is very exciting to partner again with CleanEquity and the Principality of Monaco as they celebrate the 10th anniversary of their event, for which PR Newswire has been a proud sponsor of for seven years. As a Cision brand, PR Newswire is excited to bring the new Communication Cloud™ Platform, along with its content delivery offerings, to clean-tech businesses who can use our solutions to help ensure that their messages reach the right audiences to further drive investment and visibility."
